Contract & Inventory

Every promise becomes something your team can deliver.

E-signed Contracts, custom packages, and collaborative inventory selection stay connected from the moment a booking is confirmed. Nothing needs to be entered twice, and nothing gets forgotten between sales and operations.

01 One Agreement

Packages, pricing, terms, and selections stay together inside the booking.

02 One Source of Truth

Inventory isn't recreated by operations. It already exists because it was promised.

03 One Connected Team

Sales, planners, and operations work from the same record—not separate spreadsheets.

A contract shouldn't disappear into a filing cabinet. It should begin the work.

Most systems generate a signed document and stop there.

Hello to Cheers turns accepted agreements into the operational foundation for everything that follows—from inventory and floor plans to timelines and event execution.

Nothing duplicated.
Everything connected.

Sales and operations finally speak the same language.

The team preparing the event shouldn't have to interpret a contract.

They should simply see what needs to happen.

Preparation becomes effortless when every promise is already connected.

Inventory isn't a separate module.

The chairs selected in the proposal.

The tables promised in the contract.

The linens needed for the reception.

The ceremony setup.

They're all part of the same booking—not copied into another system later.
